“ Bob was my cousin and I remember he used to stop by while working for IBM and visit my parents in Orange, California. I also saw him at one or two Walton family reunions. Many years passed with little contact but recently in the past month we met over Zoom. I interviewed him about his life and I shared some of my life with him . I now treasure that time and feel so blessed to spend that time with him.

“ I first met Bobby when we were in the 4th grade and went all through school together. He married my best friend and was so devoted to caring for her when she had MS. School seemed to be so easy for Bobby but his encouragement to those of us who found it a challenge at times was always appreciated.

“ I was very blessed to have known this whole family, but at the time didn't realize how lucky I was because I was just a young teenager. I think often about my first airplane ride it was with Bobby, Maria and Mike to California. Followed by the best vacation ever. I was an average student but not great with math. I remember when Bobby was out of town he would help Maria on the phone with things (not that she really needed much help) but then he would help me with my math, I was so thankful and he was so patient. I still have some wonderful pictures that he took in the years that we were around the family. Bobby reached out to me on fb several months ago and we had a couple of reuniting conversations, I'm so glad we did!

I'm Bob's aunt Betty, we were 9 months apart in age. We were playmates as children for a time, shared family news and gatherings through the years, shared our faith as we aged and grew on our journey, shared our pictures, written family stories of our lives, loves, children, grandchildren. Most of you probably know Bob loved to invest time and effort into this families genealogy. He shared our journeys with all of us. We are all thankful that God chose us to be such a wonderful part of Bob's life. He is missed, but what a glad reunion we will all have one day. Aunt Betty

“ My dad married his high school sweetheart. He graduated high school with salutatorian honors with my mom in a runner up position. My grandmother always said that mom threw the contest, but she would never cop to it. As they started their life together they discovered that she had MS and so he changed jobs, leaving a promising career with McDonald Douglas for a regional systems engineer position with IBM that would allow them to return to Amarillo where extended family could help with the trials to come. His love and devotion, selfless and complete, sets a very high bar that I still aspire to.

“ My whole career was started with two distinct events where he had a profound impact in my very young life. I was probably in 6th grade and he organized an outing for my Cub Scout troop to his offices downtown where they proceeded to teach a rowdy bunch of boys the Hollerith code used on punch cards. It was a simple activity but it sparked my imagination about how to “talk” to a computer. Then when I was in Jr. High school he took me into the local IBM office and taught me this new “easy to learn” programming language “basic”. Together we wrote a program to play craps, punched up the cards and ran the program. I think we ran that program 20 times, playing the game. I thought it was the coolest thing ever, so when my high school introduced a programming class I was one of the first students to sign up. Computer Science was his gift to me, and it’s true what they say, love what you do and you’ll never work a day in your life. He introduced me to a passion that has driven my whole life’s work. I stand squarely on his shoulders in all that I accomplish in life.

A fine gentlemen and awesome classmate in high school. He was two grades ahead of me and always took time to help me with algebra. I admired him greatly. Later in life, his dad (Capt. Storey) at the police department became my friend. It is clear to me that Bobby Storey has a place in heaven. Blessings upon the family and friends. --Larry Todd Broaddus
