“ You always taught me to be a lady and you tell me sit up straight. You told me never give up on my goals,,and you taught me about tough love... You also showed me how your love for your children and family was unconditional no matter what. ...

“ I just had to say that although I was Brenda's step-son, she always treated me as if I were her very own. She introduced me to Richard Pryor, Led Zeppelin, Jesus Christ Superstar and classical music. She gave me many books to read like "Bloodletters and Badmen", "Killers of the Sea", and many, many books on WWII. She took me to an archery contest in the rain, which she won. Taught me how to drive a manual transmission in Daddy's old purple dune buggy and always, always treated everyone she met with dignity and class. Life has a way off allowing people to grow apart. I wish I had not grown apart from this angel on earth. She will be missed and she has always been loved.

Even saw two hi way workers stop what they were doing as you went by. All for you. It really was a big Wooo. Did you hear me talking to you on my way home?💔💔💔💔 Heart is breaking.....

“ I will surely miss my cousin, Brenda.

As with my sister, I remember the many times and nights together as kids.

They will never happen again and have now become fond memories.

She never let me forget her 18th birthday at Nags Head, NC. What a time. And it was not the first time we had beer together. That was probably Popes Creek, MD two years earlier in that quite corrupt state. We were eating crabs and playing the slot machines.

I certainly will miss her and the nights just sitting and listening to classical music.

And now she has made her entry into Valhalla like the Gods from Wagner she so much enjoyed.

Will always cherish our times together and love you and all your family.

“ I remember when you taught me how to make corn bread and butterbeans. I also remember you being there for the birth of your first grandchild back in 1995 and hearing you say that your second grand child looked just like you. I will miss you and thank you for being the grandmama to my girls. Rest easy and know that you meant so much to so many. Love Tanya

“ I miss you Brenda. You were my mom by marriage but I never thought of you that way. You were just mom. You accepted this Yankee into your family and made me feel welcomed. I will never forget that. I will never forget how that made me feel better. Rest easy. I love you.
