“ I have fond memories of visiting Cousins Katie growing up. When adoption dolls were all the rage, she made one for me for Christmas. I remember her hard she laughed when she showed off the boy dolls she made - they were anatomically correct:) One Halloween, she dressed as a witch and served hot chocolate from her carport. She thoroughly enjoyed herself. I loved visiting her because she was always happy and that's how I will remember her. One day, when Jesus calls me home, I hope people at my funeral will talk about how happy I was and how much I laughed, just like they did today at her funeral.
